Girls' Protection Playwright's Theme at the Colony Club

Miss Rachel Crothers Says
Women, Not Men, Now Set Standards for Women.

Miss Rachel Crothers, playwright, who was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the New York Protection and Protective Association and the Girls' Protective League, yesterday afternoon at the Colony Club, told of the increased responsibilities of women for women. These responsibilities have increased 100 per cent in the last few years, she declared, and added that women and not men now set the standards for women. "A woman cares more for the approval of her own sex than for that of men," said the speaker, and added that the old tradition about women dressing for men was no longer believed, because women now dress to please themselves.

John S. Keener, president of the State Commission of Prisons, presented comparative figures of the number of men and the number of women in various penal institutions of this country. The number of men at present in the State's institutions in 1911, as compared with 895 women, he stated. Miss Maude H. Miner told of the girl problem and the need of a new detention house. After the speaking the meeting voted to ask the Board of Estimate to appropriate money for the building of a suitable detention house for girls.

George A. Alger, president of the Probation and Protective Association, who was chairman, reported that Waverly House, Hillcrest Home and the third of the organization's homes for girls had spent during the year $78,000, which had been subscribed by 1,500 members of the association. One of the largest contributors was John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who gave $5,000. The association needs $40,000 for new activities, and already a portion of this has been subscribed.

A member of the Girls' Service Club explained the work of this feature of Waverly House activities. Mrs. Charles Cary Sumner extended the courtesy of the Colony Club to the association for its meeting.

DEBUTANTES AS EDITORS PUBLISH MAGAZINE TO-DAY

Copyright A. R. Dupont Atelier. Miss Wenden Mathews. Miss Anne Gordon Winchester.

First Issue of the Debutante Calendar Represents Entry of Young Woman in Literary Field.

While older sisters of the 1921-22 debutantes and even their mothers have found vocations in various lines of trade, the debutantes themselves also have discovered a new outlet for their surplus energy in the publishing business. As the result of this collaboration of a group of these young women of society, there will appear to-day on the newsstands their first publication, The Debutante Calendar, an attractively compiled, well edited and profusely illustrated monthly magazine from the Irving Vrees.

While some of the older girls of their set have helped them in the business end of the venture, the subject matter and illustrations, except the photographs of the girls themselves, have been contributed by the debutantes. There is, however, one exception to this contribution rule, and that is an article by Mr. George Gordon Battle, president of the Parks and Playgrounds Association, into the treasury of which will go all the profits from the sale of and from the advertising business in The Debutante Calendar.

All the executive heads and contributors, save of course Mr. Battle, are members of the national Junior League organization, although the league has no part in this publishing venture. Miss Anne Gordon Winchester is chairman of the calendar committee and is editor in chief of the magazine. Miss Roberta P. Caselman is the managing director and the editorial council is composed of Miss Winchester, Mrs. Rodney Williams, Mrs. Robert Porter Patterson and the Misses Wenden Mathews, Emily Louise Billings and Diana Delah of New York, and Alice Mann of Washington.

AMERICAN MUSEUM GETS VIZIER'S GEMS

Remarkable Piece of Barbaric Jewelry From Morocco.

The American Museum of Natural History has received from M. L. Morgenstern a fine addition to its series of objects illustrating the antique use of gems in a necklace worn by a Vizier of Morocco about 1500.

The necklace is strung on a skin of green silk made up of heavy strands. The ends of the skin are wrapped about with gold thread tipped with sequins. Strung on the silk are large elongated gold beads spaced with small beads of red and green glass and with flat pieces of carnelian engraved with the Star and Crescent of Islam. At each end is a round gold bead with a beautifully worked spiral decoration. Suspended from the necklace are thirty-five pendants, some of gold, enameled in red, blue and green and set with large aquamarines, garnets, diamonds and sapphires, others being carved from agate and amethyst and set with diamonds and pearls.

McCormicks Again to Meet Deficit of Chicago Opera

To Make Up This Season's
Loss and Then Public Must Come In.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The Chicago Opera Association will carry on next year, even without the support of the McCormicks, who have been the backbone of the organization. But more than 200 additional subscribers are needed to complete the list of 500, which pledged to the extent of $1,000 a year for five years.

The McCormicks will make up the deficit at the end of the present season, but after that the company must be run on a budget system, extravagance must be tabooed and all expenditures must be approved by the executive committee, of which Charles G. Dawes is chairman.

Such were the outstanding features in a statement issued to-day by Stanley Field, secretary of the association, following a board meeting held here last night.

"Grand opera in Chicago or elsewhere on anything like a presentable scale," said Mr. Field, "is impossible without a deficit."

"Without their guaranty of the McCormicks, there must be a citizens' guaranty according to the plan evolved a year ago. New guarantors to complete the quota must be obtained immediately, as contracts for the 1923-24 season are to be let."

"Miss Mary Gordon and C. A. Shaw, the acting manager, are working now on the budget. This budget, when finished, will be referred to an auditing committee composed of John J. Mitchell, Samuel Insull and John G. Shedd. They will go over it and eliminate any needless expense."

"Within a week or so we will know exactly how much next season's opera will cost. The board of directors will then proceed to get the guarantors."

FRIVOLOUS REPLY BY TELLEGEN TO FARRAR

Therefore Judge Says Actor
Must Change It.

Matteo set up by Lou Tellegen in reply to the charges of his wife, Miss Geraldine Farrar, the opera singer, in his suit against her for a separation was ordered struck out as frivolous yesterday in a decision by Justice Wagner in the Supreme Court.

The suit was begun in Western county last August and transferred to this county after Miss Farrar began an action for divorce.

In his reply Tellegen set up matter contradictory to her charges against him "on information and belief."

In the decision he is instructed that the law does not permit a witness to testify on information and belief matter of which he must have knowledge as to whether he did or did not do certain acts, and he will either have to strike out the allegations of cruel and inhuman treatment as based on information and belief or serve an amended reply within twenty days, admitting them or denying them directly.

PROPOSE BOX OFFICE FOR ALL THEATRES

Producing Managers Consider
Plan to Foil Speculators.

The Producing Managers Association held a meeting last night at their headquarters, 231 West Forty-fifth street, to consider a plan for compelling ticket speculators, of which the principal feature proposed was a central clearing house through which the managers in unison would sell their tickets themselves.

At the end of the meeting Sam H. Harris, president of the organization, said that no definite action had been taken yet, and as the business was still unfinished, another meeting would be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

HOWARDS IN VAUDEVILLE.

The appearance of Willie and Eugene Howard in vaudeville at the Winter Garden next week will be their first engagement in the two-day in ten years. In 1911 they were then billing themselves "Eugene and Court, Howard," playing his three vaudeville. While waiting to begin their contract they made a single appearance at the Winter Garden, with the result that their vaudeville was cancelled. When Lee Shubert heard of this he offered them a place in the revue then current at the Winter Garden.

GERMAN CIRCUS ACTS HIGH.

Frank Melville Back from Europe Empty Handed.

Miss Irma Seydel, a young violinist of Brookline, Mass., returned yesterday by the Orintha from a visit to Germany with relatives. After a concert tour in New England she will tour the West and South.

Frank Melville, who provides circus acts for various organizations, came back from Germany empty handed. He said the Germans wanted as much for their acts as they received in the United States as they received in Germany from one to three years. The performers in England and Holland, he said, were more liberal.

Harry Corvey, musical clown at the Hippodrome, went with his wife to the pier to meet their twelve-year old son, Walter, who traveled alone from Berlin. Immigration officers quickly arranged the release of the boy as that the father could get back to the playhouse in time to do his act.

POLICE BAND CONCERT.

The annual concert of the police band will be held to-night at the Seventh Regiment Armory. Policeman Conrad J. Eschenberg of the Bridge precinct is chairman of the committee.

Paul Henneberg is bandmaster and instructor. He has many pupils, and among them are Billy Jones, Pease Quartet, and various Keith circuit vaudeville acts.
